Three-Way Probe of Purdue Disaster Opens

TWO STUDENTS KILLED WHEN BLEACHERS FALL

200 Injured By Collapse Of Stands Holding Cheering
Basketball Fans

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 25—A triple investigation was ordered today into the collapse of spectator - jammed wooden bleachers at the Purdue university fieldhouse which left two students dead and more than 200 others injured.

The "extra" bleachers folded with a sickening crash last night at the halftime of the important Purdue - Wisconsin basketball game, plunging 3,400 screaming fans to the floor from heights up to 30 feet.

The two students killed were Roger Gelhausen, Garrett, Ind., a Purdue university freshman and Navy veteran, and W. J. Feldman, East Chicago, Ind., a junior student and an ex-warrant officer in the merchant marine.

Officials said the collapse of the stands occurred when a student throng leaped to its feet to cheer a Purdue hoop team which had grabbed a halftime lead as the favored Wisconsin aggressed.

About 100 persons were stretcher cases, suffering broken arms, legs, or other fractures. Many were injured by the splintered wood.

Hospital authorities said five or six persons still were in critical condition.

Among the seriously injured treated at Home hospital were Wayne Doler, 29, Lafayette, Harold Warren, 25, West Lafayette, and David Betcome, 26, West Lafayette.

Also listed as badly hurt and in Home hospital were John Kessel, Dayton, O., fractured leg and other injuries; Mrs. Susanna Baldwin, New Harmony, Ind., eye and leg injuries; and Louise Zeigler, Michigan City, Ind., back injuries.

Investigations were ordered by the university, Lafayette city officials, including Gov. Ralph F. Gates.

President Frederick Hovde of Purdue university ordered the fieldhouse closed pending an investigation. In a statement, Hovde declared:

"The fieldhouse has been closed until a careful investigation of the cause of the failure of the stands can be determined. Those newly purchased stands were not, according to members of the athletic department, loaded beyond their rated capacity as specified by the manufacturers and approved by the appropriate state officers."

The disaster occurred in a bedlam of cheering and yelling scant seconds after the gun ended the half with the underdog Purdue team ahead of league-leading Wisconsin, 34 to 33.

The mass of spectators in the east stand suddenly pitched forward.

Cold Wave Continues In County

Higher temperatures Tuesday gave Circleville area residents some relief from the frigid weather of the past few days but additional relief was not expected until Thursday.

The official weather forecast Tuesday predicted additional snow flurries and continued cold Tuesday night and Wednesday, with perhaps warmer temperatures Thursday.

Circleville thermometer readings were 25 degrees above zero at 8 a. m. Tuesday and 28 degrees above zero at 11 a. m. Tuesday, as compared with 11 degrees above zero at 8 a. m. Monday and 18 degrees above zero at 11 a. m. Monday. On this same date a year ago the mercury rose to a high of 54 degrees.

Although ice and snow on highways, streets and sidewalks slowed vehicular and pedestrian traffic no serious accidents were reported in the Circleville district Monday night and up to noon Tuesday.

Inch Lines Tapped
Officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas company said that gas service in Circleville, Ashville and Amanda will likely be improved because of completion of connections made with the Big Inch and Little Inch pipe lines. Connections were made at Little Walnut, near Route 23 north. This boosted the pressure materially in the Circleville lines, gas company officials explained.

Circleville, they said, has not been nearly so hard hit by lowered gas supply resulting from the severely cold weather as (Continued on Page Two)

HOGS JUMP TO $30 ON CHICAGO STOCK MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 — Hog prices hit a new all-time high in trading at the Chicago stockyards today.

Choice animals sold for $29.50 a hundredweight at the opening of the market, and quickly moved up to $30. The general market at mid-morning was $28.50 to $29.25 a hundredweight.

Hogs hit $29 yesterday, breaking the old record of $27.50 established last October after the removal of OPA ceilings.

Russ Jeter, pork specialist for the U. S. department of agriculture, predicted that pork chops will hit a retail price of $1 a pound, and that ham, bacon and other pork products will show a proportionate rise.

The skyrocketing market was attributed to three factors:

1. Light receipts (at the nation's 10 principal markets today receipts of hogs were 46,100, compared with 62,500 a year ago);

2. Demand is heavy

3. Cold storage stocks of pork are the smallest on record (as of Feb. 1, 387,083,000 pounds compared with an average of 530,529,000 for the past five years).

A spokesman for the packing industry said that unseasonal high prices have kept pork products moving to market instead of into storage.

Trading at the record prices was light, and buyers for some of the big packers were not in the market at all, holding that prices asked were too high to permit a profit.

CLEVELAND HOG PRICES HIT RECORD OF $29.50

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25 — Hog prices soared to $29.50 a hundred pounds on the Cleveland livestock market today for a new record.

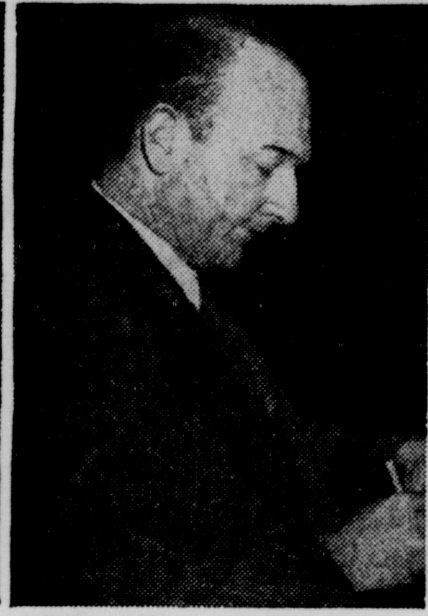

Good to choice 160-250 pound hogs were up $1 over yesterday's quotes and $2 more than last Friday's close of $27.50.

Producers cooperative commission said today's figure was the highest recorded in Cleveland in the last 70 years.

Lilienthal Confirmation Battle Stirs Storm Among Nation's Voters

SECRETARY TO MOSCOW

Marshall To Take Delegation
Of 84 With Him To Big 4 Confab

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Secretary of State Marshall today disclosed full Russian approval of the United States request to take over the former Japanese mandated islands in the Pacific.

The secretary told a news conference that a brief note just arrived from Moscow which said the Soviet government felt it was entirely fair to transfer these islands to United States trusteeship.

Russia took into account the fact that American forces played the dominant role in winning the Pacific war and made incomparably greater sacrifices than any other nation.

Earlier, Moscow suggested that the trusteeship question be deferred until the Japanese peace treaty had been signed. Today's note made no mention of the time element.

Other highlights in Marshall's news conference were:

1. The secretary will leave Washington for the Moscow big four conference on March 5. He will be accompanied by a delegation of 84—about half of whom are stenographers and clerks. John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser on international affairs, will make the trip with the approval of Sen. Vandenberg (R Mich.), who will not go at the outset of the conference.

2. Britain's proposal to give India its complete independence by June, 1948, if "responsible Indian hands" are available to accept the power, was termed "a just basis for cooperation."

Marshall said this government "profoundly hopes that Indian political leadership will accept this clearcut challenge and proceed to break the impasse between the congress and the Moslem league."

3. A special state department group is considering the situation in Korea where the Russians apparently are organizing an army of 500,000 natives in contravention of the Moscow agreement. Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, U. S. commander in Korea, is in close consultation with this group. He will see Secretary Marshall at a later date on the subject.

4. Marshall closed incident dispute between the United States and Soviet Russia over under secretary of state Dean Acheson had slandered Russian for committee as a closed incident. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov complained that Acheson's policy in rude fashion. Marshall replied that Acheson's comments were restrained and justified. Accused Of Murder

Harvey B. Julian, 26, alleged slayer of his ex-wife, Pearl Eileen Julian, 20, is sane but he has the mentality of a 9-year-old-boy.

This is the substance of the ruling which was received by Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff, Tuesday, from the Columbus State Hospital.

Dr. J. F. Bateman, as superintendent of the Columbus institution, where Julian was placed under observation Feb. 6 by order of the common pleas court, reported to the court that Julian was given thorough medical examination and that while he was deemed sane Julian's mentality was on the "borderline of feeble-mindedness."

Julian's intelligence quotient was recorded at 61, Dr. Bateman's report said, meaning that his mentality was found to be that of a person the age of 9 years and 4 months. The report further said that Julian is "mentally deficient" and that it is doubtful whether he could have planned and executed a first degree murder.

Judge Radcliff ordered Sheriff Charles Radcliff to return Julian as soon as convenient from the Columbus State Hospital to the Pickaway county jail in Circleville. Sheriff Radcliff said the transfer would be made either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Attorney Emmitt L. Crist, counsel for Julian, said he was unable to state just what the (Continued on Page Two)

22-year-old Pilot Hero Of Daring Arctic Rescue

WESTOVER FIELD, CHICOPPEE, MASS., Feb. 25—Safe and sound through the ingenuity of a 22-year old American Air Force pilot, 11 crew members of a B-29 bomber were brought back to civilization from the Greenland ice-pack today.

A masterpiece of rescue work—perhaps without a parallel—was completed when Lieut. Bobbie Joe Cavnar of Okmulgee, Okla., set his air transport command C-54 down on Chicopee airfield in a perfect three-point landing at 7:53 a. m. (EST).

Some 15 hours earlier, he had picked up the crew of the stranded B-29 from the surface of a handkerchief of frozen glacial lake on the far northwestern tip of Greenland.

Cavnar got his big ship down by a miracle and got it off the lake by another one. He had stripped it of everything inside before he left Thule in Greenland and put rockets under its wings to enable a take-off with the survivors if he was able to land.

He did and got back to Westover with his own crew of 10 and the 11 he had snatched from the wilderness.

The B-29—nicknamed the Kee Bird—crash landed in what is known as Washington land after battling a severe Arctic storm. Rescue attempts set in motion extended over wide areas of the northern hemisphere. Kayaks, dogsleds and helicopters were involved, but it was Cavnar and his C-54 which did the trick.

On arrival at Westover, all of the 11 rescued men were said by a doctor to be in "good shape", although five of them were suffering from shock.

WHITNEY SAYS LABOR ISSUES ONLY DELAYED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — A leader of last year's paralyzing railroad strike told congress today that the disputes which caused the two-day walkout "were only delayed, and still remain to be settled."

A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, testified before the house labor committee that the major issue was the union's demands for changes in working rules which will be renewed this year.

Whitney discussed the railroad case in the course of a statement urging the government to place its chief reliance in solving industrial disputes on "mediation and conciliation."

He said mediation failed in the rail case because the national mediation board sought to compel the unions to withdraw the demands on rules changes while the government stood ready to act as "a strike breaking agency."

At the same time, David Dubinsky, president of the AFL International Ladies' Garment Workers union of 380,000 members, told the senate labor committee that the "answer" to the nation's labor problem lies in legislation to remove or minimize the "economic insecurity" of the workers.

TOKYO, Feb. 25—American army headquarters in Tokyo announced today that 178 persons were killed and 270 others were injured when a breakaway passenger train jumped the rails near Urawa, one hour outside the Japanese capital.

Four of the train's six cars rolled over a 30-foot embankment in one of the worst rail disasters in recent Japanese history.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's occupation headquarters, announcing the casualties, said no allied personnel were aboard the ill-fated train.

Telephone service in Circleville and Pickaway county was informally discussed for more than three hours Monday night in the city council chamber in Circleville but the county-wide 15-member protest committee reached no definite decision on the question of whether to submit their petitions to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

The meeting had been arranged as a joint session of the county protest committee, spokesmen for the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company, and a three-member special committee of the Circleville city council. Virtually all members of the county committee attended, and Edwin B. Jury, Circleville exchange manager and three Portsmouth representatives of the telephone company were there, but Councilmen Ray Anderson, John Eshelman and George L. Crites, named a few weeks ago to represent the city in the negotiations, did not attend.

William E. Bowers, Ashville, is chairman of the county-wide committee, and he was the committee's principal spokesman. The petitions branding the telephone service as "inadequate" were circulated a few weeks ago and Bowers said that more than 1,000 signatures were obtained.

During the lengthy discussion the company spokesmen disclosed tentative plans for extension of the telephone facilities and improvements to the service throughout the county. These improvements, they asserted, will likely include installation of additional lines, especially to Williamsport, Ashville, and the rebuilding of the Ashville exchange with the probability of an automatic switchboard there.

In the first day's hearings yesterday, seven private club permits were revoked by the board on evidence uncovered by Attorney General Hugh Jenkins and his staff.

The most sensational testimony was offered by Mrs. Dorothy Good-Smith, 52, who identified herself as secretary-treasurer of the D-G club.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Normalcy is closer than you think—Florida real estate again is being peddled in New York.

Nylon and meat lines have disappeared and I hear a fellow refused a $5,000 house at the bargain price of $12,000.

Soon, students on our campuses will be swallowing live gold fish and then we will know the cycle is complete.

Even talk of the CIO and AFL merging is pre-war and dust-covered.

And to complete the picture, Russia has rejected a state department note—just like in the old days.

The more you examine it the more the brave new world looks exactly like the tattered old one.

A few faces have changed but it's the original script and stage.

BEVIN BLAMES AMERICAN JEWRY FOR TROUBLES

LONDON, Feb. 25 — British foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today blamed American Jewry and United States electioneering for breakdown of Arab-Jewish negotiations for a settlement of the Palestine problem.

In a sensational statement opening debate in the house of commons on Britain's decision to refer the Palestine issue to the United Nations general assembly, Bevin charged:

1—That President Truman's statement urging immediate admission of 100,000 European Jews into Palestine, stemmed from "election rivalries."

2—That he (Bevin) pleaded with former secretary of state James F. Byrnes to have this statement withheld.

3 — That he was told Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York would issue a "competitive statement" if the presidential declaration was withheld.

4 — That the Jewish agency, "largely dominated from New York," had refused to join in the conversations and thus brought about the collapse.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25 — A scheduled "bonus march" on the Ohio statehouse and the introduction of a new veterans' aid bill in the senate focused attention on bonus measures being heard by the house military affairs committee today.

Meanwhile, the full senate military affairs committee will meet with its bonus subcommittee tomorrow as committee hearings again take the spotlight from happenings on the chamber floors.

Senate committees heard proposals today to reduce unemployment compensation rates, to hear opponents of the 194 million dollar Daniels - Cramer school bill, an anti-church bingo measure, a proposal to change the constitution to permit the lieutenant-governor-elect to succeed if the governor-elect dies before his inauguration, and the much-discussed unified conservation bill.

House committees, in addition to the five bonus proposals and two veterans' loan plans before the military affairs group, scheduled hearings on five bills to divert the one-cent liquid fuel tax to highway purposes and another measure to leave the (Continued on Page Two)

Moscow Recognizes Facts Americans Took Islands From Japanese

SECRETARY TO MOSCOW

Marshall To Take Delegation Of 84 With Him To Big 4 Confab

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Secretary of State Marshall today disclosed full Russian approval of the United States request to take over the former Japanese mandated islands in the Pacific.

The secretary told a news conference that a brief note just arrived from Moscow which said the Soviet government felt it was entirely fair to transfer these islands to United States trusteeship.

Russia took into account the fact that American forces played the dominant role in winning the Pacific war and made incomparably greater sacrifices than any other nation.

Earlier, Moscow suggested that the trusteeship question be deferred until the Japanese peace treaty had been signed. Today's note made no mention of the time element.

Other highlights in Marshall's news conference were:

1. The secretary will leave Washington for the Moscow big four conference on March 5. He will be accompanied by a delegation of 84—about half of whom are stenographers and clerks. John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser on international affairs, will make the trip with the approval of Sen. Vandenberg (R Mich., who will not go at the outset of the conference.

2. Britain's proposal to give India its complete independence by June, 1948, if "responsible Indian hands" are available to accept the power, was termed "a just basis for cooperation."

Marshall said this government "profoundly hopes that Indian political leadership will accept this clear-cut challenge and proceed to break the impasse between the congress and the Moslem league."

3. A special state department group is considering the situation in Korea where the Russians apparently are organizing an army of 500,000 natives in contravention of the Moscow agreement. Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, U. S. commander in Korea, is in close consultation with this group. He will see Secretary Marshall at a later date on the subject.

Dispute Closed Incident

4. Marshall regards the dispute between the United States and Soviet Russia over under secretary of state Dean Acheson had slandered Russian for committee as a closed incident. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov complained that Acheson had slandered Russian foreign policy in rude fashion. Marshall replied that Acheson's comments were restrained and justified. Molotov came back with a second note saying this was (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kierman

Normalcy is closer than you think—Florida real estate again is being peddled in New York.

Nylon and meat lines have disappeared and I hear a fellow refused a $5,000 house at the bargain price of $12,000.

Soon, students on our campuses will be swallowing live gold fish and then we will know the cycle is complete.

Even talk of the CIO and AFL merging is pre-war and dust-covered.

And to complete the picture, Russia has rejected a state department note—just like in the old days.

The more you examine it the more the brave new world looks exactly like the tattered old one.

A few faces have changed but it's the original script and stage.

"not convincing." Marshall will make no further answer.

5. The Romanian government has promised that 7,000 tons of food relief now enroute under supervision of the American Red Cross will be distributed without "any political, social, racial or religious discrimination." The Romanian government further has agreed that so long as present famine conditions continue she will not permit the export from Romania of any cereal grain in payment of reparations or for grain loans from other countries or for commercial purposes.

Policy Unchanged

6. Marshall said he would approach the Moscow conference with an American policy unchanged from that outlined by former secretary of state James F. Byrnes in his Stuttgart speech or from the agreements reached at Potsdam.

7. Russia still has failed to reply to American proposals for a final lease settlement.

8. Marshall carefully sidestepped questions on the current senate fight over nomination of David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the United States atomic energy commission.

9. Great Britain as yet has not replied to the American note asking for clarification of London's decision to turn the Palestine issue over to the United Nations.

FINES OF $145 IMPOSED ON MEN IN DISTURBANCE

Fines totaling $145 were imposed by Mayor Ben H. Gordon, Monday night, on three men who reportedly were participants in a fight late Saturday night in the White Swan cafe on West Main street.

Hamp Ferguson, 47, laborer, Route 3, Circleville, was penalized $100 and costs for malicious destruction of property and $25 and costs for intoxication and disorderly conduct by fighting. He was committed to the Pickaway county jail in default of payment. Noah Adams, 27, Columbus, and William Walton, 22, Circleville, each charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct by fighting, were fined $10 and costs each.

Patrolman Alva Shastean and John W. McGinnis, who made the arrests, said Ferguson hurled a beer bottle at Patrolman McGinnis, who "ducked" and the missile crashed through the Venetian blinds and shattered the front window of the cafe. Merda Marshall, cafe operator, in filing the charges against Ferguson, placed the damage at $78.38.

RUSSIAN TROOPS OUTNUMBER U. S. OVERSEAS FORCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Authoritative sources disclosed today that Russian armed forces outnumber the American by about five-to-one in Germany and three-to-one in Korea.

Officials based this estimate on latest reliable reports available in Washington.

It was stated that the Soviets have 500,000 officers and enlisted men stationed in Germany as compared with 150,000 United States troops in that theater.

Soviet strength in Korea was placed at 165,000 military personnel. Spokesmen said that this force is about three times greater than America's in that territory.

Meantime, Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of U. S. forces in Korea, told reporters that the Russians are concentrating in the red zone Koreans in the 17-25 age group for normal military training.

The general estimated that, based on population, it would be feasible for the Russian powers to obtain an army of 500,000 from this source.

AUTO BADLY DAMAGED

Damage placed at $700 was caused to the automobile of John Porter, South Pickaway street, it was learned Tuesday, when the car swerved from U. S. have many nearby cities. The reason, officials explained, is that the gas company lines in the Circleville vicinity have available gas from Line A and Line Z-10, two of the largest main gas lines in the state. Both are 18-inch lines that are at the edge of Circleville.

Restrictions Eased
At Columbus the Ohio Fuel Gas company announced Tuesday that the strict emergency caused by the latest cold spell was ended and that full gas service was being supplied domestic users.

However, industrial concerns still were cut off from gas supplies, and will remain so until pressures in the main transmission system rise.

Company officials warned that another immediate cold spell might bring disruption of service even to some domestic users. Liquid propane injected into the company's system helped alleviate the system, but the firm's entire supply was used up. It was pointed out the propane equalled 37 million cubic feet of gas daily.

Company officials said that careful conservation measures by customers were responsible for the uninterrupted gas service yesterday.

At one time gas pressure was down to the point of impending failure to the southside of Columbus and Grove City.

Industries Without Gas

Both the Ohio Fuel Gas Company and the East Ohio Gas company, however, continued the ban to hundreds of industries. Spokesmen for the companies said that there would be no restoration to manufacturing plants until pressure in the main systems rise.

Low temperatures over the state this morning were up on the average of 10 degrees as compared with those yesterday morning. The weather bureau reported a low range of from 19 at Toledo to 25 at Cleveland and Perry.

Forecasters said the mercury probably would get slightly above freezing this afternoon but would drop back into the 20's again tonight.

Warm Air Coming

Some additional rise was predicted for around Thursday as a mass of fairly warm air continues to seep into this area from northeastern Canada.

Forecasters said that temperatures in the Hudson bay region were comparable to those in Ohio today. That situation, they said, may lead to a general thaw later in the week.

Adding to the gas shortage was a blanket of snow ranging from a trace to 12 inches at Chardon. The state department of highways reported all roads slippery in spots and recommended cautious driving.

High and low temperatures and precipitation amounts in inches, respectively, at various points for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today were:

next move will be in the legal procedure of the case, but he indicated that whether Julian will be placed on trial for the murder will of course depend largely upon the court.

By order of the court Julian was transferred from the county jail, where he had been held without bond, to the Columbus institution early in February to undergo mental observation. The court order signed by Judge Radcliff decreed that the period of observation should not exceed 30 days. The entry also bears the signatures of County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins, and Attorney Emmitt L. Crist as counsel for Julian. The mental examination was ordered on the recommendation of Attorney Crist, and Dr. George W. Heffner, jail physician.

Mrs. Julian was shot and killed the afternoon of Jan. 21 on the Hitler-Ludwig road three miles east of Circleville. A few hours afterward Julian, from whom she had obtained a divorce three weeks before, surrendered to Sheriff Charles Radcliff. The sheriff and Prosecutor Robbins said that Julian subsequently signed a full confession. However, he pleaded not guilty to the first degree murder indictment.

A group claiming more than 500 veterans planned to march down High street in Columbus to the state capital.

The group, calling itself the Ohio veterans conference, was instituted by the Collingwood veterans committee of Cleveland, which marched on the capital during a 1946 special session. Players heading for their dressing rooms stopped and rushed to help extricate the stricken victims.

The game was immediately called off and within a matter of seconds the public address system was booming directions to aid the injured and prevent panic in other parts of the field-house.

Radio broadcasts brought doctors and ambulances rushing to the scene, and the more seriously injured were taken to St. Elizabeth's and Home hospitals in Lafayette, where cots were set up in hallways to accommodate the influx of injured.

Many of the victims were laid on the basketball floor and covered with coats and sweaters while awaiting attention.

The stands had been constructed last fall to increase the field-house capacity to 10,500 from 8,000.

Authorities praised the coolness and resourcefulness of dozens of students, many of them ex-G.I.'s with experience in handling wounded. Some students used the splintered planking of the collapsed bleacher seats as improvised stretchers in carrying off their classmates.

The collapsed stand was about 100 feet wide and held 62 rows of seats.

Restrictions Eased
At Columbus the Ohio Fuel Gas company announced Tuesday that the strict emergency caused by the latest cold spell was ended and that full gas service was being supplied domestic users.

However, industrial concerns still were cut off from gas supplies, and will remain so until pressures in the main transmission system rise.

Company officials warned that another immediate cold spell might bring disruption of service even to some domestic users. Liquid propane injected into the company's system helped alleviate the system, but the firm's entire supply was used up. It was pointed out the propane equalled 37 million cubic feet of gas daily.

Company officials said that careful conservation measures by customers were responsible for the uninterrupted gas service yesterday.

At one time gas pressure was down to the point of impending failure to the southside of Columbus and Grove City.

Industries Without Gas
Both the Ohio Fuel Gas Company and the East Ohio Gas company, however, continued the ban to hundreds of industries. Spokesmen for the companies said that there would be no restoration to manufacturing plants until pressure in the main systems rise.

Low temperatures over the state this morning were up on the average of 10 degrees as compared with those yesterday morning. The weather bureau reported a low range of from 19 at Toledo to 25 at Cleveland and Perry.

Forecasters said the mercury probably would get slightly above freezing this afternoon but would drop back into the 20's again tonight.

Warm Air Coming
Some additional rise was predicted for around Thursday as a mass of fairly warm air continues to seep into this area from northeastern Canada.

Forecasters said that temperatures in the Hudson bay region were comparable to those in Ohio today. That situation, they said, may lead to a general thaw later in the week.

Adding to the gas shortage was a blanket of snow ranging from a trace to 12 inches at Chardon. The state department of highways reported all roads slippery in spots and recommended cautious driving.

High and low temperatures and precipitation amounts in inches, respectively, at various points for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today were:

Akron 28-23, .05; Chesapeake 25-21, .03; Cincinnati 26-24, .03; Cleveland 29-25, .06; Columbus 28-23, .10; Dayton 26-23; East Liverpool 25-22, .01; Findlay 29-24, .01; Hayesville 28-22, .04; Parkersburg, W. Va., 25-23; Perry 30-25; Toledo 31-19, .04; Wilmington 24-20, .12; Youngstown 27-24, .0 and Zanesville 26-21, .05.

next move will be in the legal procedure of the case, but he indicated that whether Julian will be placed on trial for the murder will of course depend largely upon the court.

By order of the court Julian was transferred from the county jail, where he had been held without bond, to the Columbus institution early in February to undergo mental observation. The court order signed by Judge Radcliff decreed that the period of observation should not exceed 30 days. The entry also bears the signatures of County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins, and Attorney Emmitt L. Crist as counsel for Julian. The mental examination was ordered on the recommendation of Attorney Crist, and Dr. George W. Heffner, jail physician.

Mrs. Julian was shot and killed the afternoon of Jan. 21 on the Hitler-Ludwig road three miles east of Circleville. A few hours afterward Julian, from whom she had obtained a divorce three weeks before, surrendered to Sheriff Charles Radcliff. The sheriff and Prosecutor Robbins said that Julian subsequently signed a full confession. However, he pleaded not guilty to the first degree murder indictment.

BURKE and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elwood Burke.

SILENCED since the day in 1911 when he piloted his railroad engine through a narrow tunnel and was "smothered" by smoke, Albert Burke, 82-year-old Bridgeport, O., resident, today reveals in his new found power of speech. A group claiming more than 500 veterans planned to march down High street in Columbus to the state capital.

The group, calling itself the Ohio veterans conference, was instituted by the Collingwood veterans committee of Cleveland, which marched on the capital during a 1946 special session. A spokesman said they would demand in addition to a bonus, low-cost housing, fair employment practices, and other veterans' aid.

He said that his group favored a bonus not financed by an increase in sales tax or by a real estate levy, but by "increased taxes based on ability to pay."

ward and down from heights up to 30 feet, row falling upon row, while the rest of the 10,500 fans looked on as shocked, unbelieving witnesses.

Players heading for their dressing rooms stopped and rushed to help extricate the stricken victims.

The game was immediately called off and within a matter of seconds the public address system was booming directions to aid the injured and prevent panic in other parts of the field-house.

Radio broadcasts brought doctors and ambulances rushing to the scene, and the more seriously injured were taken to St. Elizabeth's and Home hospitals in Lafayette, where cots were set up in hallways to accommodate the influx of injured.

Many of the victims were laid on the basketball floor and covered with coats and sweaters while awaiting attention.

The stands had been constructed last fall to increase the field-house capacity to 10,500 from 8,000.

Authorities praised the coolness and resourcefulness of dozens of students, many of them ex-G.I.'s with experience in handling wounded. Some students used the splintered planking of the collapsed bleacher seats as improvised stretchers in carrying off their classmates.

The collapsed stand was about 100 feet wide and held 62 rows of seats.

U. S. TO LET SMALL NATIONS AIR ATOM VIEWS

Bitter Debate On Corfu Channel Mining Marks Four-Hour Session

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Feb. 25.—The United States is prepared to stand aside today and allow smaller members of the security council to state their viewpoint on Russia's proposed changes in the report of the atomic energy commission.

The powerful eleven-nation body is scheduled to reconvene at 3 p. m. to resume debate on the twelve amendments laid down by Soviet Russia against the atomic energy commission's plan for international control of atomic energy.

An increasing tendency noticeable among members of the security council is to refer the atomic report back to the atomic energy commission in its entirety and start that 12-nation group off on revision and elaboration of its work.

A spokesman for the United States delegation, indicated that Warren R. Austin, chief American representative, had tentatively decided to let the others make known their views before committing himself.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British representative, in the previous security council session, called attention to the various "areas of agreement and disagreement" existing on the atomic report. He insisted that in principle the veto must be disallowed in any international atomic code of inspection, control and punishment.

The security council has one of its heaviest schedules ahead, with meetings set for tomorrow on the strategic trusteeship request on the part of the United States and resumption of the debate over Albania on Thursday.

The four-hour session yesterday afternoon on the Corfu channel mining ended inconclusively when the delegates became snagged in a procedural wrangle. The last two hours of the session were marked by acrid words between Cadogan and Russia's Andrei Gromyko.

The United States in general supported the British viewpoint and informed the Albanian representative that it failed to understand why Albania had not been able to detect mines floating in the Corfu channel.

At the same time, acting United States deputy Herschel V. Johnson came out strong for the proposal by Australia which would create a sub-committee of three to examine all evidence and report back to the council by March 3.

Russia, Poland and Syria quickly opposed this plan. Albanian representative Hysni Kapo reiterated his country's innocence and charged Britain with maintaining a hostile attitude. He said that the British attitude before the council was "threatening."

CITY ENROLLED TRAFFIC SAFETY CONTEST FOR '47

Circleville On Honorable Mention List For Good Four Year Record

Joining with other Ohio municipalities in the traffic safety program, Circleville has enrolled in the Ohio traffic safety contest for 1947 by W. F. McCrady, chief of police.

"In entering this community in the contest, Police Chief McCrady pledged:

"Realizing that cooperative action by all governmental agencies, civic groups and individual citizens is necessary to carry on an effective program of traffic accident prevention, our city will lend every assistance possible to help make Ohio the safest state."

The Ohio Traffic Safety Council, which sponsors the contest with the active support of the Ohio department of highways, pointed out:

"Traffic safety is all important at this time, as evidenced by the rising accident rate that is resulting from the increasing use of the streets and highways since the war ended. Every indication is that the traffic toll will continue to rise unless accident prevention activities are made effective through every means that human ingenuity can devise and that organized group action can further."

The Ohio Traffic Safety contest is for cities of 4,000 or more population. The cities are divided into seven population classifications and awards are made in each of these classifications to the communities showing the greatest traffic safety improvement for the year.

The seven population classes into which the contest is divided are: (1) 250,000 and over; (2) 100,000 to 250,000; (3) 50,000 to 100,000; (4) 25,000 to 50,000; (5) 10,000 to 25,000; (6) 5,000 to 10,000; (7) 4,000 to 5,000.

Circleville was accorded honorable mention in its population group in the Ohio Traffic Safety contest for 1945, having had no reported traffic deaths for that year compared with 1944. Circleville also was accorded honorable mention for its meritorious traffic accident prevention record in 1944, 1943, 1941 and 1940.

The winning cities in the Ohio traffic safety contest for 1946 will be announced after March 15, 1947 deadline for submitting reports.

GERMAN RAIDS CONTINUED BY U. S., BRITISH

1,000 Key Nazis May Be Arrested When Cleanup Is Completed

HERFORD, GERMANY, Feb. 25.—Combined British-American raids on members of a wide-spread Nazi underground movement in Germany continued without let up today, with an estimated 80 per cent of the persons sought already in custody.

A British army spokesman indicated the dragnet cleanup, termed "operation selection board," will be completed within the next day or so. The simultaneous raids began late Saturday night on plotters of a grandiose scheme for setting up a new Nazi order.

Reports said that perhaps as many as 1,000 key Nazis will be under arrest by the time the operation is finished.

The underground movement was said to be armed with a secret "germ" weapon with which it hoped to re-unite Germany into a powerful state, and lead the world against Russia in a new out-break of lethal militarism.

(The Moscow radio, in a brief comment on the raids, which took place only in the British and American zones, said rather bluntly that "the economic merger of the British and American zones of course favored the organization of this underground movement.")

Each suspect was scrutinized carefully when he was taken into custody. Officials generally remained tight-lipped about the results of their preliminary interrogation, but there were hints that they were taking no chances on slipping up if Martin Bormann, Hitler's "missing" deputy should be netted.

STOUTSVILLE SCHOOL NEWS

Farmers' Institute held recently was very well attended during all sessions. The school put on the program for the first session which was conducted by Gerald Doering of the senior class. Many nice articles of merchandise were among the door prizes which were awarded at intervals throughout all the sessions. Numbers for the various programs were arranged by the churches in the community. At the last session, a cast of characters gave a play entitled, "Father Goes Domestic," and the auditorium was filled to capacity. The Clearcreek School Club women who had charge of the dinner both days were happy to find they had cleared a net sum of $96.50 profit.

Stoutsville Indians were successful in their first game of the Fairfield county tournament when they met Carroll on the Liberty Union court. However, they were defeated by the Bremen Oilers on the same court during their second game at the contest.

A new teacher has been added again to the school faculty this week. He is the Rev. Mr. Weimer of Lancaster who has been substituting in various schools throughout the county. He teaches American democracy, world history, 7th geography, and 7th math.

Teachers met Tuesday evening, February 18 at 3:45 to discuss the problem of high school evaluation. After rating the school according to the 22 points given, it was found that for a small school, the activities, organization, supervision, instruction, records, facilities, equipment, etc. were all average and many far above the average rating.

County board of education and the county superintendent, Paul Cummins, visited the school Thursday morning, Feb. 20.

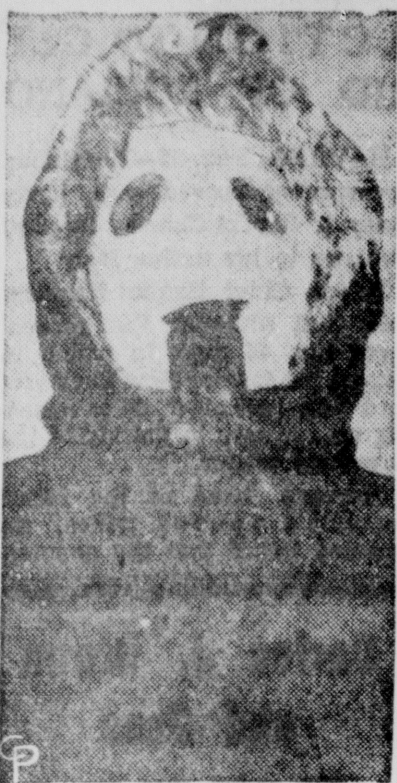

A variety show is being planned by the music classes, under the direction of Miss Bowsher, and is being written by them. It is being sponsored in order to obtain funds for band uniforms and music for choruses. It will be given in March. Seats will be reserved.

Soil Conservation Notes

By J. A. Muster

Requests for recommendations for the use of Spring fertilizers are becoming numerous as the date for seeding oats and grasses approaches. Corn fertilizer inquiries come also, as the time to accept Spring fertilizer delivery is here. Farmers don't have the pre-war choice of mixtures this year since a large variety isn't in the market. From current information 2-12-6 and 3-12-12 are the two formulae that seem most available though limited amounts of other grades are listed. Both the mixtures named are very good.

Since the response to fertilizer by oats is often less than it is by corn, many figure that the grasses, particularly the legumes, benefit if the oats don't respond, and such reasoning is sound. The amounts to use per acre depend on the period it is planned to hold the meadow; the length of the rotation, among other things. Perennial legumes require plenty of phosphorus and potash, hence 250 to 350 lbs. per acre isn't too much to use when two years of meadow is desired. These are minimum, not maximum figures. For corn, 200 to 250 lbs. per acre are conservative suggestions for medium to well drained land. For poorly drained soils 50 more pounds per acre are recommended.

The effectiveness of any fertilizer use for all crops depends largely on the use of enough lime. If legume-grass seedings are being made in small grain the use of sufficient lime is pre-supposed, as no amount of fertilizers, including manures, can replace lime.

One of the things to remember about manures, is that they are low in phosphorus; therefore the addition of 30 lbs. phosphate per ton to manure before it is spread, makes it the great fertilizer that it is generally considered to be. The longer manure is mixed with the soil before corn planting, the more beneficial it will be to the corn; it must have time to decompose.

Henry F. Butts in Jackson township listed his 103-acre farm with the Pickaway Soil Conservation district last week to plan for a rotation with two meadow years, which will enable Mr. Butts to have more pasture for his beef cattle.

SCOUT TROOP 121 PLANS TO HOLD HIKE ON SUNDAY

Dick McIntire opened the regular meeting of Scout troop 121 Monday evening with the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Scout oath and law was given by Ralph Huffman.

Plans were made for a hike Sunday. Boys will be given chance to pass outdoor tests at this time. Instructors, in addition to Scoutmaster Robert Dean, will be Richard Justice, Roy Denham and Jack Kneese. A short patrol period was held with each patrol putting on stunts.

Pine Tree patrol will meet at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at the home of Scoutmaster Dean. Panther patrol meets there Wednesday at 7 p. m.; Cobra patrol at 7 p. m. Thursday. Friday troop members will visit the fire department, where they will study methods of fighting fires.

83 OHIO STATE GRIDDERS START EARLY DRILLS

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25 — Wesley Fesler, new Ohio State football coach, had his Buck gridders convinced today that he meant business.

Fesler ordered his football aspirants to report yesterday for a month-long conditioning program before Spring practice officially opens.

Eighty-three candidates, headed by Captain Tommy James and 22 other 1946 varsity squad members, were on hand yesterday. They ran smack into an hour of rigorous calisthenics and conditioning exercises.

Fesler promised a lot more of the same in the days to come. Conspicuous among those present was halfback-quarterback Tommy Phillips, who supposedly intended to quit school until Fesler's arrival on the scene. Dean Sensenbaurer, 1943 ball-toting star and subsequently a member of the Army team in 1944, also appeared for the drill.

BIG NINE GAME ENDS AT HALF

Purdue And Wisconsin May Never Finish Tilt
Stopped By Tragedy

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—Purdue and Wisconsin may never play off the basketball game which started as a crucial Big Nine test and ended prematurely in tragedy which brought death to two Purdue students and injury to more than 200.

Western Conference Commissioner Kenneth L. Wilson will confer today with athletic directors of both institutions concerning a possible playoff of last night's game—a game that was halfway over when the east stands in the Purdue fieldhouse at Lafayette, Ind., gave way beneath 3,400 jumping, yelling fans.

The game brought out a jam-packed throng of more than 10,500 fans. And it was Purdue's showing in the first half—the Boilermakers led at the intermission, 34 to 33—which caused the crowd to rise to its feet roaring as the Purdue team left the floor.

Wisconsin was leading the Big Nine race by one game at the time. Wisconsin is still leading the race, but by half a game—with one game to play, for second-place Illinois last night topped Michigan at Ann Arbor, 46 to 43.

So three courses of action were open to Wilson, who declared last night that such a tragedy was unknown in previous Western Conference annals.

Wilson will decide on one of the following courses:
1 - Cancel the game.
2 - Resume the game where it left off last night, with Purdue leading by one point at the half.
3 - Play the whole game over.

Indiana beat Ohio State 46 to 43 at Bloomington last night and can still tie Illinois for the crown should Wisconsin lose to Minnesota Saturday night, at which time Illinois and Indiana will also meet.

OFFER TO MEDIATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 — The British Broadcasting corporation reported today that Syria and Lebanon have offered to mediate the differences between Egypt and Britain which led to a breakdown of treaty negotiations.

Fouls Made In Tourney Play Here

BY ED IRWIN

Tournament side - lights: Largely unnoticed in the excitement of the finals was the remarkable free throw shooting in the game: Perry making 7 of 8 attempts, ironically the only foul missed would have tied the score with only seconds remaining to be played, and New Holland making 8 of 11 charity tosses a total of 15 of 19 free throws being made under the pressure of the finals; a record likely to remain unbroken for years. In the consolation game Reid with 8 of 10 and Hix with 10 of 13 contributed 18 points via the free throw route in defeating Deercreek. The entire Monroe team scored 24 points on free throws alone, making half their points in the game in this manner.

Drake of Perry made six in a row in the Walnut game before he missed, and the New Holland team consistently made over half their charity attempts. Highest individual scores per game were turned in by Drake of Perry with 27 against Walnut; and Hix of Monroe with 19 against Ashville and 20 against Deercreek.

We agree with Frank Colley of the Columbus Citizen whose Sunday column stated that "Blaming a team's defeat on the officials is the cheapest sort of sportsmanship, but unfortunately it is one which is employed entirely too often." There is no disgrace in a team losing. After all, in a basketball game, there is no such thing as a tie, one team has to lose. It is no indication of sportsmanship to be able to win gracefully. It does take sportsmanship to lose without an alibi. Fortunately the majority of fans can do just that, but there are always a few who can't take it and must always blame the defeat of their pets on someone else. Some day I may believe that an official has been responsible for the loss of a game.

game. But that will be only when such a charge is made by the team which won."

I believe that everybody, playing basketball or any other sport, should study these words before blaming officials for loss of a game.

INDIANA TOPS BUCK CAGERS; JAYVEES LOSE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25—The Bucks of Ohio State were home today from a two-game road junket that lasted 15 minutes too long.

The Bucks, who stunned Wisconsin with a one-point upset Saturday, succumbed to Indiana, 46 to 43, in the second half of a game at Bloomington last night. Ohio State had a one-point, 22-21, lead at halftime. Five minutes after the last half began, however, the Hoosiers went ahead and stayed there.

Big Jack Underman set the scoring pace for both teams with 20 points, eight more than Indiana's Western Conference scoring leader, Ralph Hamilton, produced. Lou Watson also had 12 for the Hoosiers.

Meanwhile, the Buck junior varsity finally came a cropper. After winning ten in a row, the Jay-Vees lost to Butler's reserves, 49 to 48, at the fairgrounds coliseum last night.

A long basket and second "bunny" shot, both by Butler's Tommy Rosenstihl, spelled the Bucks' doom.

I believe that everybody, playing basketball or any other sport, should study these words before blaming officials for loss of a game.

FAVORITES IN FOR TOUGH ROW

"B" Basketball Teams Set To Start District
Tourney Play

By International News Service
They sifted out the winners in the majority of 86 Ohio county class "B" tournaments today as the state settled down to district tournament play this week and next.

On the basis of the preliminary returns, it looked like a rough year for favorites.

Farmer, defending state titlist, lost a semi-final decision last week but managed to squeeze into the district as an also ran.

Bluffton, winner of 18 straight games, was knocked out in its first tourney start against Lima St. Rose.

York Center, which didn't win a Union county league game and hasn't even a floor of its own, pulled two upsets in county tourney play to reach the next rung on the ladder.

Jeromesville, hottest team in Ashland county, was bumped in the finals by Perrysville, 41 to 33. Both, however, qualified for district play.

New Holland, winner of 20 straight in regular season play, barely squeezed through in Pickaway county. New Holland edged Atlanta, 22 to 21. Both advance along with Monroe, consolation winner.

Other favorites had a happier time. Worthington, runner-up in the state tourney last year, passed its first 1947 milestone as it conquered Grove City, 27 to 16, in the Franklin county finals.

Favored Frazeysburg made it look easy in Muskingum county with a 66-50 final count against Dresden.

Bettsville, only undefeated "B" team in northern Ohio, whipped Old Fort, 37 to 33, for its 23rd straight.

Meanwhile, Upper Arlington in class "A" drubbed Chillicothe, 63 to 50. Saturday night to finish undefeated with 18 straight wins. The Bears joined Bryan, a 16 time victor, as the state's only unbeaten class "A" combines.

INDIANA TOPS BUCK CAGERS; JAYVEES LOSE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25—The Bucks of Ohio State were home today from a two-game road junket that lasted 15 minutes too long.

The Bucks, who stunned Wisconsin with a one-point upset Saturday, succumbed to Indiana, 46 to 43, in the second half of a game at Bloomington last night.

Ohio State had a one-point, 22-21, lead at halftime. Five minutes after the last half began, however, the Hoosiers went ahead and stayed there.

Big Jack Underman set the scoring pace for both teams with 20 points, eight more than Indiana's Western Conference scoring leader, Ralph Hamilton, produced. Lou Watson also had 12 for the Hoosiers.

Meanwhile, the Buck junior varsity finally came a cropper. After winning ten in a row, the Jay-Vees lost to Butler's reserves, 49 to 48, at the fairgrounds coliseum last night.

A long basket and last second "bunny" shot, both by Butler's Tommy Rosenstihl, spelled the Bucks' doom.

I believe that everybody, playing basketball or any other sport, should study these words before blaming officials for loss of a game.

BOSSES NOT NEW

THE POLITICAL boss is not a modern invention. Not only did he exist in ancient Greece and Rome, but it appears from Glyndon C. Van Deusen's new book, "Thurlo Weed, Wizard of the Lobby", he was in full flower before the Civil War.

Weed, holding no office, directed legislatures and party conventions as modern bosses do. His reign over New York Whig and Republican parties lasted 30 years, not weakening until the '60's. Like others after him, he oiled the machine with money from promoters seeking franchises, banks and railroads wanting charters, and employers desiring special favors. They preferred to deal with Weed direct rather than with a multitude of legislators and party officials.

Similarly in 1922 many Pennsylvania business men supported Boss William S. Vare of Philadelphia for the United States Senate, because, in the words of that conservative commentator, Mark Sullivan, "they wanted one man at the head whom they could see, and who would tell them yes or no."

It is to be hoped that Sullivan was wrong in his interpretation of the business point of view. For the road these men were treading led from Weed to Vare, and looming ahead were Mussolini and Hitler.

OUR LITTLE WORLD

IN THIS small and shrinking world of ours there are, as all well informed people know, two basic danger spots. One is Russia, and the other is the United States. Neither wants war, but each has some doubt of the other's aims, and so both consider it necessary to maintain a reasonable degree of defense. It is an old story, repeated again and again in the history of civilization. There are usually ambitions, too, connected with the situation but viewed on the whole the main purpose seems defensive. We want to live, and we want a living.

There are some, too, who are not quite civilized, and who therefore regard it as glorious to crush and loot their neighbors—but latterly there is less of that. Civilization does exist and grow and make converts. There are now more consistent efforts in this direction. There had better be. For with the weapons now available, this world, or what would be available after another world war, wouldn't be worth much.

There are 180,000,000 people in Russia, and only 500,000 radios, and only 85,000 equipped for short-wave. Just flood Russia with radio sets and everything will be O. K. Or will it?

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—The unions' socialist government of Britain has been trying in many ways to escape responsibility for the fuel famine of its great coal producing nation. It blames the weather which has been abnormally snowy and icy, preventing the railroads from functioning for a brief period. Its union of mine workers, however, has looked beyond the weather for a cause to explain the anomaly of a coal nation being unable to keep itself warm and its men at work. The union, in a meeting, has formally blamed the former bosses of the mines, the owners from whom the government seized the properties. That kind of excuse might do well enough for last winter or earlier winters when the former owners ran the properties. But now the government has taken over. So naturally not only the conservatives, like Mr. Churchill, but the frozen man in the street are both inclined to blame the current owners, to charge the labor government not only with lack of foresight in failing to build proper stocks at important centers, but with utter failure to do its coal producing job.

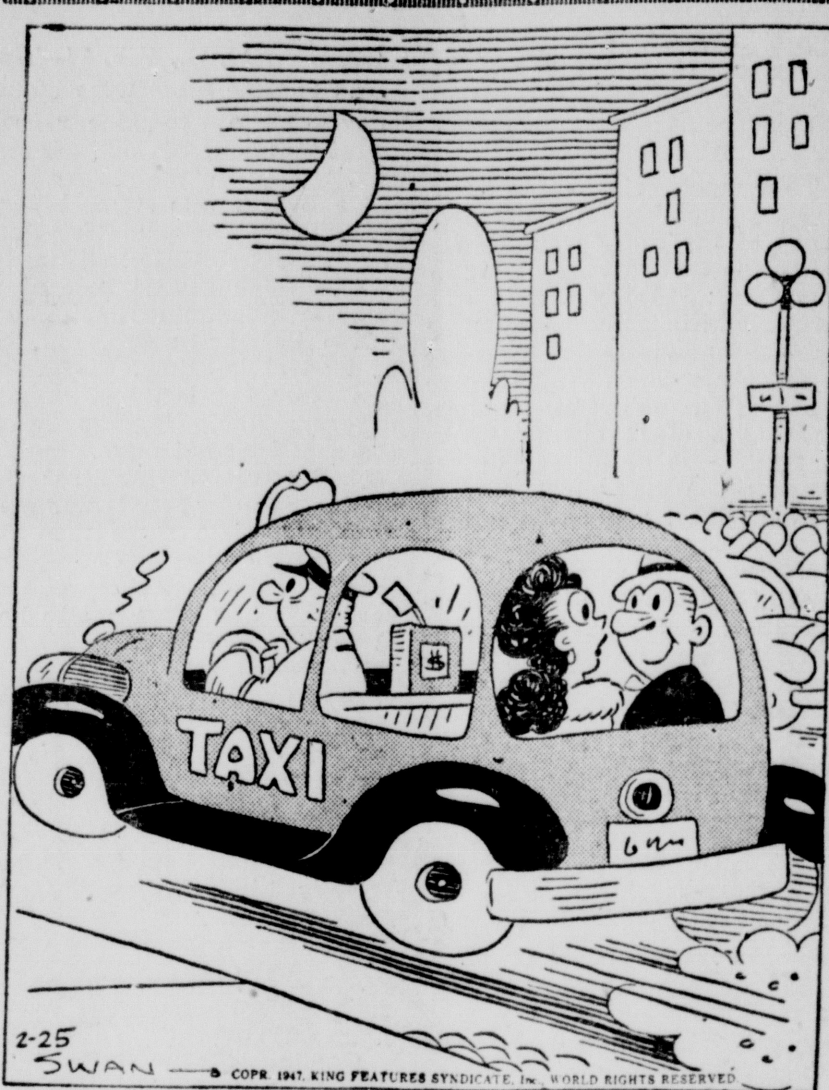

In such a political melee, the reports from Britain seem to avoid a genuine objective explanation of the astonishing failure. Not a word can I find anywhere tracing in the actual production of the mines since the government started preparing to take them over. The London Times publishes some figures which may shed a slight ray of light on this avoided basic matter. It says the daily average of loadings in a period at the height of the bad weather crises was 44,000 tons from certain key producing districts as compared with 46,000 tons average for 12 weeks in the Fall. So in the stress of aroused national pressure, the shipments can be considered to be 2,000 tons a day less than in a normal pre-crisis period. Under utmost acceleration, the government is still not loading as much coal as it was when it was coasting along in the Fall, and blindly laying the groundwork for just such a crisis as has occurred.

The government, it is clear, was not producing enough coal then or now, which did not even appear in this country. Perhaps the truthful reason for this failure lies in some significant news items which did not even appear in this country, and were buried in the British press before the bad weather accentuated a deteriorating coal producing situation. In January, the Yorkshire main colliery (employing 3,000 men) was shut down by an unofficial strike called by the miners because some men had been transferred from one part of the colliery to another—no greater reason than that. Simultaneously 1,100 men struck at the Sherburn hill colliery in a wage dispute, cutting production 1,000 tons a day. On the very same single day which I picked at random in a British newspaper, 1,200 miners at Tredegar collieries were being urged not to strike the following Monday by the government's regional coal board.

These facts do not comprise an ex post facto excuse for political propaganda purposes, but indisputable evidence as to the real reason why Britain has suffered.

The facts are not illogical or surprising. Genuine objective economists have long contended that democratic socialism could not produce enough to sustain itself. Churchill, in his unsuccessful election campaign, said the union socialist government would have to enslave the workers and (Continued on Page Six)

"The Authority on Authorities"

TRUMP LEADS VITAL

WILLINGNESS to lead a trump at the right time is vital to good defensive play. That time can be either at the beginning of the play or later on. Usually its purpose is to prevent the declarer from using one or more of the dummy's trumps for ruffing and instead compel him to consume those cards on regular trump tricks. There are lots of contracts which can not be beaten by any other procedure.

5 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Dbl

There are players who would have preferred a trump lead by East against that kind of bidding, to prevent North from ruffing his side suit of hearts. This particular East, however, led his diamond K. North trumped and, seeing the danger of two heart losers, refrained from leading that suit at once. He sent forth the spade K, hoping the A would be a singleton, so trump could not be returned.

The A was not a singleton, but might as well have been, for West did not return the trump which would have compelled North to lose two heart tricks.

Instead he tried for a ruff of hearts by his partner, a terrific long shot, North playing low and dummy's J forcing the A. Now East, who would have liked to return another spade, had none left, so used a second diamond. North won with a ruff, trumped his heart 6 in dummy and discarded three hearts on club tops, leaving him no hearts except the K.

Thus the kindly opponents enabled North to make an otherwise impossible contract.

That bidding might deserve some comment. Despite his vulnerability, North decided that his freak major two-suiter justified opening with his spades so that, when he later showed the hearts, South would know his whole story. He was willing to shade high card strength because of the excess distribution and the probability that the opponents could attempt a considerable height in one or both minor suits.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

IT WAS nearly dark when Cliff rode into camp, and the first person he met was Lilli. Standing beside Plato's cage, she had been feeding the big jaguar, but now she came running, and at sight of his bruised throat she gasped, "You all right?"

Cliff dismounted. "I'm still living."

She laid a hand on his arm. "You went back there again to see—him?"

In her eyes Cliff saw the cloud of suspicion and resentment that he should go without telling her. Lilli's hands closed. "Did she know you went?"

"Who?"

"You know who—Miss Janet."

"Nobody knew, Lilli. I'll tell you all about it later, but just now I'm hungrier than that jungle cat. Be a good kid and get the cook to send some sandwiches and coffee to the office."

Reluctantly she walked away, and unsaddling his horse, Cliff entered the little office. Janet was at work behind his desk, and for a moment he stood in the doorway, watching her head bent over the paper, then he took a step forward, and at the sound she looked up and breathed a glad sigh of relief.

"What's the idea of all this mysterious disappearance?" she called, and laid down her pencil. "Nobody knew where you were." Then slowly, "Except Lilli."

He was suddenly uneasy. "What did Lilli say?"

"She kept looking up the trail all afternoon, and whenever any of the men came in she asked if they had seen you. She was frightened, and I suppose it was contagious, for by supertime I was jittery, too. I asked her if she knew where you were, or whether you were in danger, but she wouldn't answer. I could see something was wrong, and I begged her to tell me what it was, and then—"

Janet broke off. "I think she really hates me, Cliff. She told me that if anything happened to you she would make me pay. She was in such a deadly earnest, you see, I'm frightened. I suppose you know she's in love with you."

"A kid like that—"

"Lilli isn't a kid. She's old enough to have all the emotions of a grown woman and none of the self-control."

"If Lilli's in love with anybody," Cliff answered, "it's with Vicente."

"She's been angry at Vicente for months. She felt neglected, and then she came along and were nice to her." Janet gave a little helpless laugh. "You'll never know much about women, Cliff. Maybe Lilli does love Vicente still—that doesn't keep her from having a full-size dislike for me because of the time you and I spend together."

Wearily Cliff threw himself into a chair. "So I'm a moron about women, am I?"

Again she laughed. "Oh, not a moron—just a little backward."

Silent, Cliff frowned down at the floor. Life was becoming difficult enough without Lilli adding to its complexities—he'd have a talk with her tomorrow.

But tomorrow's stream of events crowded all thought of Lilli from his mind.

Cliff heard about it first from Casey. A band of vaqueros, probably acting under Madison's orders, had ridden through the plantations and came upon three rubber gatherers building a lean-to shelter. Recognizing them as members of a Blackland family friendly to Cliff, the vaqueros ordered them off the plantation and began tearing down their half-finished shack. Just about that time Casey and his construction crew chanced along, and the vaqueros were told in Casey's blunt terms to get out of the plantations and stay out.

The affair was not merely an isolated incident, for the same afternoon Cliff learned that groups of vaqueros were systematically visiting every household that had been gathering rubber for him, ordering the men to keep off the plantations, and when one, more courageous than the rest, refused, Sloan himself had beaten him to insubordination.

When he heard the news, Cliff's only comment was, "So that's the way it's going to be." It was something, he realized, he should have foreseen, and might have prevented if he had been more tactful with Madison. But regrets were useless. The thing had happened.

He walked slowly over to the office, and inside found Janet, her face so pale he asked anxiously, "What's wrong?"

For a moment she did not answer, then still refusing to meet his eyes, she said, "I just heard something I don't want to believe."

He could see she was fighting against unwelcome news, but in a moment she went on. "Don Antonio left here a few minutes ago. Remember him?"

"The old fellow you saved from a beating?"

"You saved him—I didn't. He told me that his two boys were on the river the day your barges were cut loose. They saw who did it."

Cliff whistled. "Who was it?" He almost shouted the words.

Wide-eyed, she looked up at him. "Madison and Sloan."

The blood had risen to Cliff's face. Twice he paced the length of the office, then halted before Janet. "Why didn't Antonio tell us sooner?" he demanded.

"He was afraid. But today the vaqueros burned his barn because the two boys had been working for Casey. He's leaving tonight to go back into the Blacklands where he'll be safe, and before he went he told me about Madison. At first I couldn't believe it. Wonderingly she shook her head. 'I've known Madison for so many years. I used to think I knew him better than he knew himself. Cliff, it's just not possible he'd do a thing so mean and cowardly. What would he have to gain?"

"Plenty."

"Then you really believe he did it?"

Cliff sat down behind his desk. "Let's not kid ourselves, Janet. Madison loves you and hates me. He would never have let me get started here except for two things. First, it gave him an opportunity to have you near him, and second, he had every reason to suppose my gang would start a war with Vicente. That would be his chance to jump in and get rid of the Blacklanders for all time. The idea was perfect from his standpoint, but it didn't happen, so Madison changed his tactics. He's tried to stir up trouble between us and the Blacklanders, and when that didn't work either, he began trying everything he could to delay my work and void our contract. Intimidating our workers, cutting loose our barges, that's just part of it. This morning two of his vaqueros tried to mix it up with one of my boys. They got the beating of their lives, but all this is slowing us up. We can't let these things go on—it's better to have a showdown." Cliff glanced toward the clock. "I think I'll go up and see Madison tonight."

Janet looked at his stony set face and asked quickly, "Cliff, will you do something for me?"

"Of course."

"Before you see Madison, let me talk to Charibel."

"Why?"

"I don't like the way your jaw is locked."

His face relaxed, but he shook his head. "What's the use of talking to Charibel? She doesn't know what's going on; she thinks everything Madison does is perfect. And besides, the last time you tried diplomacy with Charibel, you almost got me thrown out."

"This is different. She's been more friendly lately. The very fact that Madison has to resort to these tactics shows that Charibel isn't against you. If she were, she could simply break your contract—you've always said it was drawn up that way. Cliff, Janet pleaded, 'let me ride up now. I'll be back before midnight, and if I fail, you can still talk to Madison.'"

Watching her earnest face, Cliff smiled in retrospect. "I wonder if you realize how you've changed from the girl I used to call a rabbit."

"I know I have. I don't feel afraid any more. You've kept me so busy, you slave-driver, I haven't had time to be afraid."

"It isn't that. It's because you've learned a big secret—the secret that nothing is very terrible once you make up your mind to face it. It's only the things we won't deal with that give us goose pimples."

"Then you'll trust me to talk to Charibel tonight?"

He capitulated. "Give the old sea-cow my love."

Bleeding from Mouth Needs Prompt Doctor's Examination

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN bleeding from the mouth occurs, the average person is likely to be alarmed. And he has every right to be, for this may be a sign of a serious condition. Certainly, it should never be dismissed lightly without a thorough and expert examination.

As a matter of fact, the blood may not be coming from any portion of the mouth itself, but, rather, from the back part of the nose, the esophagus, which leads from the mouth to the stomach or the windpipe and bronchi which are the tubes in the lungs.

When Bleeding Occurs

When bleeding from the mouth occurs, the doctor's first job is to find from just what source the blood is coming. With mirror he will examine the back part of the nose or nasal pharynx. Then he will look into the larynx or voice box.

If he suspects that the bleeding is coming from the windpipe or bronchi he will make an examination with a bronchoscope which is an instrument made up of a tube with lights which can be passed into the windpipe and bronchi and permits the doctor to examine these structures directly.

If it is thought that the blood is coming from the esophagus which leads from the mouth to the stomach, an X-ray examination of the esophagus can be made followed by the use of an esophagoscope which is like a bronchoscope.

According to Dr. Paul M. Moore, Jr., of Cleveland, among the conditions which may produce bleeding from the esophagus are varicose veins, tumor, ulcer of the esophagus, or the presence of some object which has been swallowed. Varicose veins in the esophagus may cause no symptoms other than the bleeding. Treatment which sometimes is successful is injection of the enlarged veins with a solution of sodium morrhuate. This is carried out through the esophagoscope.

Difficulty in Swallowing

A tumor of the esophagus will cause such symptoms as difficulty in swallowing over a long period of time together with occasional bleeding. Such tumors frequently can be removed surgically, depending on their location. If surgical removal is not possible, X-ray treatments may be tried.

Bleeding from the windpipe and bronchi may be due to tuberculosis, pneumonia, tumors or bronchiectasis, a condition in which the bronchi are enlarged or dilated. X-ray and bronchoscope examination permits of an accurate diagnosis.

The first step in the treatment of all these cases of bleeding is to stop the bleeding itself. Then the defect or cause of loss of blood must be remedied and, if necessary, the giving of blood injections into a vein. Finally efforts must be made to first determine and then cure the cause of the bleeding.

Congress Really Streamlined? Numerous Committee Meetings Harried Newsmen Have Doubt Keep Reporters on the Double

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—After six weeks of the streamlined Congress, Capitol Hill observers are debating how much is really streamlined. On the critical side, harried newsmen are finding that they have more committee hearings to cover than ever. They are wondering if the new high-powered committee staffs are not the reason—showing more speed than usual in arranging committee hearings.

Thus, some say, committee work is not reduced—it is only redistributed. On the other side of the ledger, there seems to be a saving of legislative manpower—fewer lawmakers conduct subcommittee hearings.

Some complain that the effort to provide better talent in offices and committees to ease the legislators' task is not paying off. "Professional" committee aides, especially, are asserting that patronage is dictating many appointments.

The truth would be hard to find. It is true that many "politicians" are getting those jobs; but it is also true that when a "politician" handles a legislator's "political" problems, he can devote his attention to what is supposed to be his major job—framing the nation's laws.

Many legislators really are picking able research men to help them—and in general, the high powering of staffs is noticeable.

THE AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT's decision to support the prices of turkeys is expected to cost the government approximately 28 million dollars before the program expires next June 30.

Officials admit that the government may have to buy ten million pounds of turkeys at 27.9 cents a pound to bring the national price to levels reflecting 90 per cent of parity.

The union, in a meeting, has formally blamed the former bosses of the mines, the owners from whom the government seized the properties. That kind of excuse might do well enough for last winter or earlier winters when the former owners ran the properties. But now the government has taken over. So naturally not only the conservatives, like Mr. Churchill, but the frozen man in the street are both inclined to blame the current owners, to charge the labor government not only with lack of foresight in failing to build proper stocks at important centers, but with utter failure to do its coal producing job.

In such a political melee, the reports from Britain seem to avoid a genuine objective explanation of the astonishing failure. Not a word can I find anywhere tracing the actual production of the mines since the government started preparing to take them over. The London Times publishes some figures which may shed a slight ray of light on this avoided basic matter. It says the daily average of loadings in a period at the height of the bad weather crises was 44,000 tons from certain key producing districts as compared with 46,000 tons average for 12 weeks in the Fall. So in the stress of aroused national pressure, the shipments can be considered to be 2,000 tons a day less than in a normal pre-crisis period. Under utmost acceleration, the government is still not loading as much coal as it was when it was coasting along in the Fall, and blindly laying the groundwork for just such a crisis as has occurred.

The government, it is clear, was not producing enough coal then or now, which did not even appear in this country. Perhaps the truthful reason for this 'allure lies in some significant news items which did not even appear in this country, and were buried in the British press before the bad weather accentuated a deteriorating coal producing situation. In January, the Yorkshire main colliery (employing 3,000 men) was shut down by an unofficial strike called by the miners because some men had been transferred from one part of the colliery to another—no greater reason than that. Simultaneously 1,100 men struck at the Sherrburn hill colliery in a wage dispute, cutting production 1,000 tons a day. On the very same single day which I picked at random in a British newspaper, 1,200 miners at Tredegar collieries were being urged not to strike the following Monday by the government's regional coal board.

These facts do not comprise an ex post facto excuse for political propaganda purposes, but indisputable evidence as to the real reason why Britain has suffered.

The facts are not illogical or curprising. Genuine objective economists have long contended that democratic socialism could not produce enough to sustain itself. Churchill, in his unsuccessful election campaign, said the union socialist government would have to enslave the workers and Usually its purpose is to prevent the declarer from using one or more of the dummy's trumps for ruffing and instead compel him to consume those cards on regular trump tricks. There are players who would have preferred a trump lead by East against that kind of bidding, to prevent North from ruffing his side suit of hearts. This particular East, however, led his diamond K. North trumped and, seeing the danger of two heart losers, refrained from leading that suit at once. He sent forth the spade K, hoping the A would be a singleton, so trump could not be returned.

The A was not a singleton, but might as well have been, for West did not return the trump which would have compelled North to lose two heart tricks.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

IT WAS nearly dark when Cliff rode into camp, and the first person he met was Lilli. Standing beside Plato's cage, she had been feeding the big jaguar, but now she came running, and at sight of his bruised throat she gasped, "You all right?"

Cliff dismounted. "I'm still living."

She laid a hand on his arm. "You went back there again to see him?"

In her eyes Cliff saw the cloud of suspicion and resentment that he should go without telling her. Lilli's hands closed. "Did she know you went?"

"Who?"

"You know who—Miss Janet."

"Nobody knew, Lilli. I'll tell you all about it later, but just now I'm hungry than that jungle cat. Be a good kid and get the cook to send some sandwiches and coffee to the office."

Reluctantly she walked away, and unsaddling his horse, Cliff entered the little office. Janet was at work behind his desk, and for a moment he stood in the doorway, watching her head bent over the paper, then he took a step forward, and at the sound she looked up and breathed a glad sigh of relief.

"What's the idea of all this mysterious disappearance?" she called, and laid down her pencil. "Nobody knew where you were." Then slowly, "Except Lilli."

He was suddenly uneasy. "What did Lilli say?"

"She kept looking up the trail all afternoon, and whenever any of the men came in she asked if they had seen you. She was frightened, and I suppose it was contagious, for by supertime I was jittery, too. I asked her if she knew where you were, or whether you were in danger, but she wouldn't answer. I could see something was wrong, and I begged her to tell me what it was, and then—"

Janet broke off. "I think she really hates me, Cliff. She told me that if anything happened to you she would make me pay. She was in such deadly earnest, it was frightening. I suppose you know she's in love with you."

"A kid like that—"

"Lilli isn't a kid. She's old enough to have all the emotions of a grown woman and none of the self-control."

"If Lilli is in love with anybody," Cliff answered, "it's with Vicente."

"She's been angry at Vicente for months. She felt neglected, and then you came along and were nice to her." Janet gave a little helpless laugh. "You'll never know much about women, Cliff. Maybe Lilli does love Vicente still—that doesn't keep her from having a full-size dislike for me because of the time you and I spend together."

Wearily Cliff threw himself into a chair. "So I'm a moron about women, am I?"

Again she laughed. "Oh, not a moron—just a little backward."

For Tuesday, February 2

WHILE there are signs of affairs moving ahead "by leaps and bounds" as it were, with the spirit of initiative and enterprise for high pressure activities, especially in launching fresh projects or plans of a creative or highly constructive nature, yet over-zeal in this direction might defeat high purpose or drain the energies. Hints of obstacle may spur to over-aggressive policies as well as invite collusion or intrigue from those in important positions, or others under impulse of jealousy or duplicity.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, although finding themselves in a position of aggressive action in relation to major opportunity, of a definitely creative as well as practical aspect, yet may be so greatly excited as to overdo and carry things to excess, under swiftly accelerated energies and ideas. This is to their decided hazard since over-ambitious programs may let down the energies and faculties to such degree that others of enmity, greed, jealousy may step in to trick and grab, under subtle ways or subterfuge.

A child born on this day, while being endowed with excellent forces and faculties of a creative

Silent, Cliff frowned down at the floor. Life was becoming difficult enough without Lilli adding to its complexities—he'd have a talk with her tomorrow.

But tomorrow's stream of events crowded all thought of Lilli from his mind.

Cliff heard about it first from Casey. A band of vaqueros, probably acting under Madison's orders, had ridden through the plantations and came upon three rubber gatherers building a lean-to shelter. Recognizing them as members of a Blackland family friendly to Cliff, the vaqueros ordered them off the plantation and began tearing down their half-finished shack. Just about that time Casey and his construction crew chanced along, and the vaqueros were told in Casey's bluntest terms to get out of the plantations and stay out.

The affair was not merely an isolated incident, for the same afternoon Cliff learned that groups of vaqueros were systematically visiting every household that had been gathering rubber for him, ordering the men to keep off the plantations, and when one, more courageous than the rest, refused, Sloan himself had beaten him to insensibility.

When he heard the news, Cliff's only comment was "So that's the way it's going to be." It was something, he realized, he should have foreseen, and might have prevented if he had been more tactful with Madison. But regrets were useless. The thing had happened.

He walked slowly over to the office, and inside found Janet, her face so pale he asked anxiously, "What's wrong?"

For a moment she did not answer, then still refusing to meet his eyes, she said, "I just heard something I don't want to believe."

He could see she was fighting against unwelcome news, but in a moment she went on. "Don Antonio left here a few minutes ago. Remember him?"

"The old fellow you saved from a beating?"

"You saved him—I didn't. He told me that his two boys were up the river the day your barges were cut loose. They saw who did it."

Cliff whistled. "Who was it?" He almost shouted the words.

Wide-eyed, she looked up at him. "Madison and Sloan."

The blood had risen to Cliff's face. Twice he paced the length of the office, then halted before Janet. "Why didn't Antonio tell us sooner?" he demanded.

"He was afraid. But today the vaqueros burned his barn because the two boys had been working for Casey. He's leaving tonight to go back into the Blacklands where he'll be safe, and before he went he told me about Madison. At first I couldn't believe it." Wonderingly she shook her head. "I've known Madison for so many years. I used to think I knew him better than he knew himself. Cliff, it's just not possible he'd do a thing so mean and cowardly. What would he have to gain?"

"Plenty."

"Then you really believe he did it?"

Cliff sat down behind his desk. "Let's not kid ourselves, Janet. Madison loves you and hates me. He would never have let me get started here except for two things. First, it gave him an opportunity to have you near him, and second, he had every reason to suppose my gang would start a war with Vicente. That would be his chance to jump in and get rid of the Blacklanders for all time. The idea was perfect from his standpoint, but it didn't happen, so Madison changed his tactics. He's tried to stir up trouble between us and the Blacklanders, and when that didn't work either, he began trying everything he could to delay my work and void our contract. Intimidating our workers, cutting loose our barges, that's just part of it. This morning two of his vaqueros tried to mix it up with one of my boys. They got the beating of their lives, but all this is slowing us up. We can't let these things go on—it's better to have a showdown." Cliff glanced toward the clock. "I think I'll go up and see Madison tonight."

Janet looked at his stony set face and asked quickly, "Cliff, will you do something for me?"

"Of course."

"Before you see Madison, let me talk to Claribel."

"Why?"

"I don't like the way your jaw is locked."

His face relaxed, but he shook his head. "What's the use of talking to Claribel? She doesn't know what's going on; she thinks everything Madison does is perfect. And besides, the last time you tried diplomacy with Claribel, you almost got me thrown out."

"This is different. She's been more friendly lately. The very fact that Madison has resorted to these tactics shows that Claribel isn't against you. If she were, she could simply break your contract—" you've always said it was drawn up that way, Cliff," Janet pleaded, "let me ride up now. I'll be back before midnight, and if I fail, you can still talk to Madison."

Watching her earnest face, Cliff smiled in retrospect. "I wonder if you realize how you've changed from the girl I used to call a rabbit."

"I know I have. I don't feel afraid any more. You've kept me so busy, you slave-driver, I haven't had time to be afraid."

"It isn't that. It's because you've learned a big secret—the secret that nothing is very terrible once you make up your mind to face it. It's only the things we won't deal with that give us goose pimples."

"Then you'll trust me to talk to Claribel tonight?"

He capitulated. "Give the old sea-cow my love."

Bleeding from Mouth Needs Prompt Doctor's Examination

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN bleeding from the mouth occurs, the average person is likely to be alarmed. And he has every right to be, for this may be a sign of a serious condition. Certainly, it should never be dismissed lightly without a thorough and expert examination.

As a matter of fact, the blood may be coming from any portion of the mouth itself, but, rather, from the back part of the nose, the esophagus, which leads from the mouth to the stomach or the windpipe and bronchi which are the tubes in the lungs.

When Bleeding Occurs

When bleeding from the mouth occurs, the doctor's first job is to find from just what source the blood is coming. With a mirror he will examine the back part of the nose or nasal pharynx. Then he will look into the larynx or voice box.

If he suspects that the bleeding is coming from the windpipe or bronchi he will make an examination with a bronchoscope which is an instrument made up of a tube with lights which can be passed into the windpipe and bronchi and permits the doctor to examine these structures directly.

If it is thought that the blood is coming from the esophagus which leads from the mouth to the stomach, an X-ray examination of the esophagus can be made followed by the use of an esophagoscope which is like a bronchoscope.

Congress Really Streamlined? Numerous Committee Meetings Harried Newsmen Have Doubt! Keep Reporters on the Double

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—After six weeks of the streamlined Congress, Capitol Hill observers are debating how much is really streamlined. On the critical side, harried newsmen are finding that they have more committee hearings to cover than ever. They are wondering if the new high-powered committee staffs are not the reason—showing more speed than usual in arranging committee hearings.

Thus, some say, committee work is not reduced—it is only redistributed. On the other side of the ledger, there seems to be a saving of legislative manpower—fewer lawmakers conduct subcommittee hearings.

Some complain that the effort to provide better talent in offices and committees to ease the legislators' task is not paying off. "Professional" committee aides, especially, are asserting that patronage is dictating many appointments.

The truth would be hard to find. It is true that many "politicians" are getting those jobs; but it is also true that when a "politician" handles a legislator's "political" problems, he can devote his attention to what is supposed to be his major job—framing the nation's laws.

Many legislators really are picking able research men to help them—and in general, the high powering of staffs is noticeable.

THE AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT's decision to support the prices of turkeys is expected to cost the government approximately 28 million dollars before the program expires next June 30.

Officials admit that the government may have to buy ten million pounds of turkeys at 27.9 cents a pound to bring the national price to levels reflecting 90 per cent of parity.

'Papa Is All' To Be Presented By EMS On Thursday

"Papa is All", which is to be presented by Epsilon Mu Sigma of Circleville high school, on February 27 and 28, is in its final week of rehearsal. Seats may be reserved at Hamilton and Ryan's drug store.

The play, a comedy by Patterson Greene, is a picturesque sketch of the simple life of a Pennsylvania Dutch family, the Aukamps. Series of events that follow this family, Papa Mama, Emma and Jake, are portrayed in the characteristic dialect of these unique people. Theme is based on the struggle, between a tyrannical over-protective father, and two modern young adults. The story is enlivened by a rattle-brained, loose-tongued neighbor, who gives Mama her only contact with the forbidden outside world "over the front fence". A handsome young Pennsylvania state patrolman adds the completing touch to the play.

"Papa is All" will be produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, and is directed by Edward R. Hamlyn, director of speech at Circleville high school.

200 Present For Silver Tea At Hedges Chapel

Musical Program Is Presented For Annual Event

Two hundred guests attended the annual silver tea, held in Hedges chapel, Saturday February 22, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. Activities committee of the church were hostesses for the outstanding social event. Arrangements of potted plants, pussy willows and Oregon huckleberry made a very appropriate setting for the musical program preceding the tea.

Mrs. Hays Dill, general chairman, presented a musical program and introduced the various members in a group of selections. Miss Elsieann Cromley opened the entertainment with a piano solo, "Consolation". Richard Valentine, music instructor of Walnut township school sang "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning", and "Oklahoma". Violin duet of "Little Symphony Number Two" was presented by Mrs. David Dill, Cleveland, and Mrs. Boyd Fosnaugh. A vocal quartette, composed of Mrs. Ralph Dunkle, Mrs. Donald Collins, Mr. Valentine and Carl D. Bennett, sang, "All Through the Years" and "Marianne". "Gates of Pearl" a trumpet solo was offered by Miss Joyce Wilson, accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. John Wilson. Mrs. Dill sang, "A Cottage Small by a Waterfall" and "Friend of Mine". Piano duet arrangement of "Alice Blue Gown" was played by Mrs. Martin Cromley and Mrs. Boyd Fosnaugh. Mrs. Cromley was accompanist for the vocal and violin numbers.

Guests were invited to the newly decorated church basement for tea and refreshments. The room was decorated with silver, red and blue winter bouquets which had been made by Mrs. Louis Koch and lighted by many lighted tapers. Mrs. Arthur Sark and Mrs. A. B. Albertson presided at the silver tea and coffee services, placed at either end of the damask covered table. A silver bowl centered the table, filled with white gladioli, chrysanthemums, a stock and green fern, was flanked by four tall white tapers tied with silver bows.

Hostesses for the tea included, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Cromley, Mrs. Sark, Mrs. Samuel Brinker, Mrs. Carl Bennett, Mrs. Simon Rife, Mrs. Alva May, Mrs. Leroy Frasier, Mrs. Kermit Massie and Mrs. Fosnaugh. Mrs. Kenneth Holtz, Mrs. Russell Hedges, Mrs. Harold Hall, Miss Donna May, Miss Sarah Jane Hedges, Misses Marjorie and Genevieve Dresbach, Wayne Hines, Joe Hedges and Bill Wharton served on the entertainment committee.

'Papa Is All' To Be Presented By EMS On Thursday

"Papa is All", which is to be presented by Epsilon Mu Sigma of Circleville high school, on February 27 and 28, is in its final week of rehearsal. Seats may be reserved at Hamilton and Ryan's drug store.

The play, a comedy by Patterson Greene, is a picturesque sketch of the simple life of a Pennsylvania Dutch family, the Aukamps. Series of events that follow this family, Papa Mama, Emma and Jake, are portrayed in the characteristic dialect of these unique people. Theme is based on the struggle between a tyrannical over-protective father, and two modern young adults. The story is enlivened by a rattle-brained, loose-tongued neighbor, who gives Mama her only contact with the forbidden outside world "over the fence". A handsome young Pennsylvania state patrolman adds the completing touch to the play.

"Papa is All" will be produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, and is directed by Edward R. Hamlyn, director of speech at Circleville high school.

CERTIFIED LEGHORN CHICKS
A few cents more invested in good chicks is money wisely invested. With eggs at 4c apiece it only takes 2 or 3 extra eggs next fall to offset the higher cost of 8 to 12c more for a better pullet now. When you buy chicks, you are buying next winter's egg production. Every pullet you buy here is the daughter of an R.O.P. male of 275 to 340 eggs and a daughter or granddaughter of a R.O.P. hen of 250 to 343 eggs. Officially no Pullorum reactors the last two years.

REDECORATED WHITE HOUSE OPEN ONCE MORE TO PUBLIC AS WAR-TIME VIGIL IS RELAXED

THE EAST ROOM—Largest room in the White House, it is used for dancing and parties. Martha Washington's portrait graces hall.

THE BLUE ROOM—Blue walls and furniture of white and gold bearing the presidential crest feature this room used for small receptions.

WASHINGTON — The White House is open again, both to the public and to the special guests who attend the glittering whirl of state dinners and receptions, marking another milestone in the re-conversion of the national capital following the long, gray years of World War II.

The Executive Mansion has been given its first face lifting in nearly a decade, the late President Roosevelt having let it fall slightly into disrepair in keeping with the austerity he was recommending to the country generally in line with war-time scarcities.

The plan was to reopen it to the public late last summer, when the Secret Service and Army guards relaxed their intense vigil of the war, but the White House was no exception to the delays that have plagued all housing, and the work was barely finished in time for President and Mrs. Truman to begin the current social season they must conduct until late in February.

Formal Season Ends Feb. 18

Specially invited guests attend the dinners and receptions which are highlighted by the spectacular diplomatic affairs and will be climaxed by the end of the formal season on Feb. 18, when senators and representatives and their wives will be entertained.

However, by far the greatest new crop of visitors to the historical building, one of Washington's favorite points of interest, are the tens of thousands of Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizens who already are flocking there in record-breaking numbers.

In normal years more than a million visitors, including hundreds of thousands of school children, enter the East Wing, pass down the long corridor, and get cherished glimpses of the renowned East Room, State Dining Room, Red, Blue and Green Rooms in the more public portion of the building.

These are the scenes of the great presidential entertainments that are reported in the press, and the rank and file of visitors, with a little imagination, can piece together in their mind's eye just how the colorful events look.

The East Room is the congregating place for the 92 guests who attend each formal dinner. They are met there by President and Mrs. Truman, who lead them into the State Dining Room, where all sit at a U-shaped table, and are served with the gold encrusted service plates, and the white china bearing the presidential crest, while a sober-visaged portrait of Lincoln looks down on them.

Some of the reception throngs number as many as thousands, and they also gather in the East Room, forming a line which moves slowly through the Red Room to the Blue Room where the president and his wife get so hands and aching wrists shaking hands with every one. Then dancing follows in the East Room.

These settings are only slightly less glamorous in the daytime when the public visitors, bearing cards which all may obtain from their senators or representative in Congress, file through the same rooms and have even more leisure than the formal guests to view the surroundings.

The major hidden addition is a formidable air raid shelter, begun early in 1942 and completed in about three months. It is connected with the nearby Treasury Department building by a tunnel begun a few days after Pearl Harbor was attacked.

The late President Roosevelt is reported never to have visited it except for a single hour of inspection, but other residents of the mansion and employees of the Executive Offices repeatedly retreated there on air raid drills.

The White House is an odd combination of a public building, private dwelling for the president and members of his family, hotel for state visitors and important staff members, office building and, during war, a fortress with gunners on the roof, guards protecting the spacious grounds behind the high

THE STATE DINING ROOM—Huge U-shape table nearly fills room for state dinners. President Lincoln's portrait dominates the far wall.

THE FAMILY DINING ROOM—When there are no guests the Truman family dines here. President John Tyler's portrait hangs over the chest.

Persons who are repeat callers—there are many who come back year after year—will notice some changes as the result of the war, and there are other additions which are grim reminders of the tension of the armed conflict and may never be opened to the public.

On the east wing is a new three-story office structure, which provided much-needed additional office space for the secretarial staff. It supplements the Executive Offices, also three stories high, which during the presidency of Theodore Roosevelt were added at the west end.

Architects long have admired the simple dignity of its classical lines, said to be patterned after the Duke of Leinster's palace in Dublin. The elliptical Blue Room, where the president receives foreign diplomats, is considered perfectly proportioned architecturally.

The East Room has walls covered with enameled wood paneling, and is decorated with 12 panels by the famous artist Piccirilli Brothers. The colorful Green and Red Rooms have notable mantels. Out of consideration for the sentiments of the millions of Americans who have visited the White House through the years, the decorations are kept faithfully from year to year.

In keeping with its role as the most historic government building in Washington, it being the first public building erected there with its cornerstone laid in October, 1792, it has had a stormy career.

Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the French engineer who laid out the Capital, picked the site, and the architect was James Hoban, an Irishman who drew on memories of his homeland for his design.

When President and Mrs. John Adams became the first residents in November, 1800, they had the sympathy of most of the more aristocratic colonists who believed they had moved into a wilderness. Burgeoning Washington, with its muddy streets, seemed rude indeed compared with Philadelphia, New York, or even nearby Baltimore with its already justly famous scrubbed white steps.

It was this famous mud of early Washington's streets which was tracked onto the upholstery of White House furniture when that idol of the west, Andrew Jackson, was hailed by the frontiersmen at his inaugural.

The presidential residence, built of light gray sandstone from quarries on Aquia Creek, Va., did not become the "White House" until after the British sacked Washington and burned the White House during the War of 1812, and Dolly Madison, wife of President James Madison, made her famous exit carrying the portrait of Washington which she ripped from its frame as the invaders approached.

Rebuilt in 1815
The building was reconstructed in the spring of 1815 and painted white to cover up the smoke marks. President Monroe moved in during December, 1817, and it has been the uninterrupted residence of the presidents ever since.

Visitors often note that the portions open to the public are too spacious to make for comfortable living according to conventional American tastes, but the living quarters consist of cozy accommodations which are comfortable.

The south portico was added in 1824, and the north portico in 1829 while John Quincy Adams was the official resident. Each set of occupants has left imprints of their own personalities on the surroundings and added mightily to the charm of the White House, although, as the caretakers say, this also creates a ghostly atmosphere that constantly echoes the past.

The White House had its only "modern" fire during Hoover's administration when part of the executive offices were destroyed. A distinctive addition during the tenancy of Franklin D. Roosevelt was a swimming pool in the basement, financed by popular subscriptions, to enable him to do the swimming he found so beneficial in his recuperation from infantile paralysis.

The spacious grounds have secluded places where President Hoover could find sufficient privacy to indulge his penchant for tossing the medicine ball back and forth with other physical culturalists of his administration.

President Harding even practiced his golf there, and he invited the world's greatest tennis stars to perform on the clay courts. President Truman uses the swimming pool, and has put his stamp on the recreational facilities by installing horseshoe pitching courts, a la Missouri.

The grounds used to be open to strollers, who walked right up to the front veranda, but the gates have been closed in recent years to give greater privacy. However, the wide-picketed iron fence always gives a good view day and night for those who gather to watch the goings and comings of the great and near-great who take part in the never-ending pageant that surrounds the presidency.

the nation before it could require its own followers to produce enough to sustain the country. The unions laughed at the great wartime prime minister for such a suggestion. Yet now the socialists are proving his point, not only in coal, which is a basic British product, but in overseas trade, which has been called the British lifeline. Exports of the United Kingdom last year were only 70 per cent in volume of what they were in 1938, although the financial value was one and a half times greater than in 1938.

Some observers say Britain will try now to save itself from its socialist predicament by going further to the left. A govenslave its own union workers, they say; rob the people of their liberty, outlaw strikes and make the miners work—thus taking the stupid and unnatural way out, which Hitler and Stalin took.

I do not think this is possible. People cannot possibly be so stupid as to stick their heads further into the noose of a system which cannot produce anything, cannot make its own people work, is utterly lost itself. Rather I believe that man learns best by experience, and out of the current lesson the British will learn they cannot operate without a profit initiative. Why not even Communism was crazy enough to go further to the left when its socialistic efforts failed in Russia ten or more years ago. Instead it restored the profits initiative to the small farmers and dealers—it restored a part of capitalism. The reason Russia has not succeeded in producing anything superior in its big industries is that it did not restore capitalism to them.

Among the residences of the chiefs of state of the great nations of the world it is considered unique and typically American. Although the White House avoids being a palace, it is a building of distinction befitting the dignity of the chief executive of the United States.

Of course, Buck Rogers (for whose daily afternoon Hooper this special fashion show was presented) had been informed by "radar-gram" that Mutual was bringing a couple of ancient 1947 designers to 200 A. D. Well, if Mutual could play, so could the designers.

Specially for the Buck Rogers fashion-show, they created a group of costumes suitable, they imagined, for our far distant posterity.

Annual Scholarship Tests Scheduled For High School Students

SENIORS WILL TAKE TESTS IN CHS MARCH 7

Certificates To Be Given High Ranking City, County Pupils

Annual scholarship test will be administered to approximately 58 senior students in Circleville and Pickaway county schools March 7 at the Circleville High school.

Announcement of the test was made Tuesday by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools and chairman of the general scholarship test committee. Other members of that committee are: J. Wray Henry, Circleville High school principal; Kenneth Christy, superintendent of the Monroe Township school; and Harold Strous, superintendent of the Saltcreek Township school.

The students will assemble at 8:45 a. m., Supt. McDowell said, and the test will begin at 9 o'clock.

Similar scholarship tests will be held in most of Ohio's 88 counties March 7 and 8 under direction of the Ohio Scholarship Tests of the State Department of Education with the cooperation of the county committees, the Ohio colleges and universities, and the high schools throughout Ohio.

All students in the upper 40 per cent of the 1946-7 high school graduating classes are eligible to compete in the test. Other seniors may take part upon the recommendation of their school principal. The test will be of objective and will cover essentials of the high school academic course of study. There are 5 subject-groups, each subject being allotted 60 points, thus making a total of 300 points for the test as a whole. One-half hour will be allowed for each subject, or two and one-half hours for the entire test. Each contestant will be required to take all of the five subjects.

The subject-groups:

1—English: usage and literature.

2—History: world, American, civics, current events. This test will be divided into one-fourth world history, one-half American history, and one-fourth current events. The current events will include state, national, and world events of a political, social, economic, religious, and educational nature taking place since September, 1946.

3—Mathematics: fundamentals and problems in arithmetic and algebra.

4—Science (in combined form): fundamental principles of the basic sciences.

5 — Reading: comprehension and vocabulary.

Supt. McDowell pointed out that although few high school seniors have had all of the five subjects the test will be as fair to one as to another.

The test papers will be scored by an electric scoring machine at the State Department of Education. From the tabulations the scores made by students throughout Ohio will be summarized and the State Department of Education will determine the identity of the contestants in the upper 5 per cent in the entire state. The results then will be sent to each participating school through the chairmen of the county committees.

Names of the high-ranking students and their test scores will be sent with a letter of recommendation to all colleges and universities or technical training centers in Ohio as well as to numerous out-of-state schools.

A county certificate of award will be presented to those students who place among the first 10 in each participating county. All others in the upper 25 per cent of the group will receive honorable-mention certificates. These will be issued as soon as the scores are determined by the State Department of Education.

In addition there will be district certificates and state certificates. The high 25 boys and 25 girls in the state will each receive a certificate of rank, and all additional students who place in the high 5 per cent throughout the state will receive state honorable-mention certificates.
